The Cincinnati Bridge Association (CBA) is your local Unit of the ACBL which you have recently joined. If you haven't joined us yet, please do so now. You can become a guest member for free and learn more about the ACBL at this link: https://acbl.site-ym.com/general/pick_username.asp

There are over 840 members of CBA in the greater Cincinnati and Northern Kentucky area and when you joined ACBL you automatically became a member of CBA. The CBA operates the Cincinnati Bridge Center, a 5,400 square-foot facility and Evendale, Ohio with bridge games 6 days a week. In addition to the Cincinnati Bridge Center, there are number of other ACBL bridge games in the area. The northern Kentucky Bridge Club and the Anderson Bridge Club are 2 of the largest.

CBA maintains a website (<http://www.cincybridge.com>) that is a rich source of information about bridge in the Cincinnati area. Complete descriptions of the games available, and times and locations, are shown on the website. In addition, there are links to the websites of the Northern Kentucky Bridge Club and the Anderson Bridge Club.

A listing of available bridge classes is also on the website. In addition to classes taught at the bridge center, we provide starter classes through the University of Cincinnati's OLLI program (Osher Lifelong Learning Institute).

Bridge is an intriguing game that has known benefits for the mental sharpness of its players. The limitless number of possible combinations of hands keeps people playing year after year. We have had several players in recent history who played beyond their 100th birthday. It provides social interaction among the players and hones their skills in logic, probability, deductive reasoning and strategy. The competitive "duplicate" form of bridge lessens the luck factor in the deal of the cards and provides feedback about how well you actually played the game.

The Cincinnati Bridge Association runs a number of different types of tournaments including sectional tournaments that draw primarily from the local area and regional tournaments that attract players from much larger area.

We look forward to seeing you at one of the bridge clubs.

Join us and bring your friends and family. We look forward to playing with you! See you at the club.
